

Abstract:

- A roof curb is made of a plurality of panels that assemble together with positive engagement without requiring the use of connectors or tools. The panels preferably are
- 4 formed from flat sheets that are stamped. In a preferred embodiment, the connections include a bent end on one member, which forms a tab, and a strap on another member, which receives the tab.